Offshore Europe appoints new Exhibition Manager

Reed Exhibitions is delighted to announce the appointment of Elaine Hulse as Offshore Europe Exhibition Manager.

Elaine has over 20 years experience of managing events in the oil and gas industry. Until 2006 she was based in Scotland and for 10 years she worked at the Aberdeen Exhibition and Conference Centre, the venue for Offshore Europe, as Sales & Marketing Manager during which time she worked on the show, the largest oil and gas industry event outside the USA. Recently she has been running a successful Aberdeen-based event management company specialising in technical and prestige energy events.

She has worked closely with the Society of Petroleum Engineers, the co-partners with Reed in the Offshore Europe show.

Said Elaine " I am very much looking forward to working on Offshore Europe - a key event which is highly respected in the energy industry for its technical excellence and where the global upstream industry will showcase its new developments and technologies at a time of growth and enormous challenges in delivery of hydrocarbons for the future"

Paul Wilson, Reed Group Exhibition Director said "Elaine's extensive experience in the energy industry coupled with her in-depth knowledge of Aberdeen, Europe's Energy Capital, will strengthen the skills of our Energy and Marine events team. The Offshore Europe Partnership will be incorporating new ideas and developments to deliver a successful event for the industry in 2009."

ADNEC reveals proposed AED 3.5 billion Al Ain Convention Centre and District at Cityscape Abu Dhabi

Abu Dhabi National Exhibitions Company (ADNEC) has revealed the concept for a proposed new AED 3.5 billion (USD 1 billion) business and residential micro-city to be built around a state-of-the-art convention centre, hotel and cultural centre in Al Ain.

The Al Ain Convention Centre is being designed by an international team of master-planners, architects and engineers to create a thriving and desirable destination which is based on the extremely successful Capital Centre business development model. The strategically-located clusters are earmarked for the mixed-use development of hotels, residential and commercial low-rise towers, in a fully integrated development around the new convention centre/hotel and cultural centre.

Ideally located near the municipality area of the city, Al Ain's first development of this kind focusing on convention development will create a vibrant business and lifestyle destination for residents and visitors alike. At the heart of this project will be a AED 387 million (USD 105 million) state-of-the-art conference centre & hotel that will be owned by ADNEC. The conference centre & hotel will act as the anchor for rest of the development - attracting businesses, event organisers, delegates and tourists from all over the region, thus driving the Al Ain Convention Centre's tremendous investment potential.

Simon Horgan, ADNEC CEO said: "This development has been designed for the community and features significant open spaces which are all connected by walkways and usable areas that are free of cars. Considerable thought has been given to creating a natural and sustainable environment that people will enjoy using."

The development of Al Ain is a key objective for the Abu Dhabi Government who wish to see it become a leading cultural and commercial destination in the UAE. It is believed that this exciting development will serve to stimulate economic growth as well as business and cultural tourism.

Now entering its final master planning stage, the development displayed at Cityscape provides a vision of what the completed project may look like.

Work is scheduled to begin on the Al Ain Convention Centre later this year. For more information on investment possibilities visit www.alaincc.ae or call 02 406 3230.

STEWART CINK AND KENNY PERRY TO PARTICIPATE WITH caddy for a cure AT THE TRAVELERS CHAMPIONSHIP

(May 20, 2008 - Coral Springs, FL) - Caddy For A Cure, Inc., The program that brings golf fans inside the ropes to caddy for PGA TOUR players, announces the participation of two superstar PGA TOUR players for the upcoming Travelers Championship at the TPC River Highlands in Cromwell, CT: Stewart Cink and Kenny Perry.

Caddy For A Cure offers its PGA TOUR player caddy opportunities through online auction services from its website (www.caddyforacure.com). 100% of all auction proceeds are donated to charity, including the Fanconi Anemia Research Fund, which is the inspiration behind the Caddy For A Cure program. Multiple local, regional and national qualified charities will benefit from the participation at the Travelers, including The Hole in The Wall Gang Camp and the Greater Hartford Jaycees.

The caddy auctions for both players are scheduled to begin on Thursday, May 22nd and will run for 2-weeks through Thursday, June 5th. The caddy date is Wednesday, June 18th at the TPC River Highlands in Cromwell, CT.

"This will be the first year for us at the Travelers Championship and we are proud to be offering the opportunity to caddy for these two great players there," commented Russ Holden, Caddy For A Cure program founder and CEO. He continued, "Both of these players are having strong seasons to add to their already impressive golf careers. They will definitely show some lucky golf fans the depth of the skill on the PGA TOUR. Stewart Cink has already racked up six top 10 finishes in 11 events and Kenny Perry has made 12 of 13 cuts, earning seven top 25 finishes, including a play-off finish for 2nd at the recent AT&T Classic. And although their playing is truly impressive, these are two absolutely super guys to be with and to learn from about what it's like to be inside the ropes on the PGA TOUR."
