US FDA, Genentech, Karolinska Institute Reps Give Keynote at Annual ISPE Event

(TAMPA, FLORIDA, USA, 17 SEPTEMBER 2008) ISPE, a global not-for-profit association of 25,000 pharmaceutical science and manufacturing professionals, announced today that they have secured Janet Woodcock of the US FDA, Hans Rosling of the Karolinska Institute and Gapminder Foundation, and Patrick Y. Yang of Genentech to give keynote presentations at their upcoming Annual Meeting in Boca Raton, Florida, USA 26-29 October 2008.

Pharmaceutical science and manufacturing industry professionals from around the world will gather at this event to share expertise and gain insight. Education sessions follow seven tracks of interest, including Regulatory, Innovation, Manufacturing Operations, Engineering Design, Investigational Products, Project Management, and Efficient and Effective Compliance. Networking activities, exhibits, and special events allow for one-on-one time with colleagues for further knowledge and best practice sharing.

"The Keynote Session with its impressive list of highly respected and credentialed speakers is just one of the many opportunities at ISPE 2008 Annual Meeting for pharmaceutical professionals to learn about emerging global industry trends and practices," said Bruce Davis, Chairman of ISPE's International Board of Directors and Global Capital Director of AstraZeneca. "The meeting's content-rich education sessions also provide critical information and interaction with industry experts and regulatory authorities."

Dr. Hans Rosling, MD, PhD, is professor of International Health at Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, Sweden. When working as a doctor in Mozambique, he discovered a formerly unrecognized paralytic disease; his research investigates links between economy and health in Africa, Asia, and Latin America. Dr. Rosling has been adviser to WHO and UNICEF; co-founded Médecines sans Frontiers in Sweden; and started courses and published a textbook on global health. He founded the Gapminder

Foundation to promote a fact-based worldview by developing software that converts international statistics into moving, interactive, and enjoyable graphics (www.gapminder.org). In 2007, Google acquired the software Trendalyzer that Dr. Rosling used in his lectures to show the trends of economic, social, and environmental change that take place in the world.

Dr. Janet Woodcock, MD, is the Director of the Center for Drug Evaluation and Research at the US FDA. She previously held deputy commissioner and chief medical officer positions within the FDA's Office of the Commissioner. She shared responsibility and collaborated with the commissioner in planning, organizing, directing, staffing, coordinating, controlling, and evaluating the agency's scientific and medical regulatory activities to achieve the mission of the FDA. She also served as the deputy commissioner for operations and chief operating officer, where she was responsible for overseeing agency operations and cross-cutting regulatory and scientific processes at the FDA.
