AirMed International Partners with Wheels Up To offer its flyers air medical transport flights

LAS VEGAS, NOV. 16, 2015 - Wheels Up and AirMed International are partnering on an exclusive program to give Wheels Up flyers and their guests complimentary access to private transport on AirMed International's fleet of state-of-the-art medical jets. The unique program begins Dec. 1, 2015.

"Our members' safety and well-being is our number one priority," said Wheels Up Founder and CEO Kenny Dichter. "Partnering with AirMed International, a leading air medical service with global reach, ensures Wheels Up members have access to immediate medical transport with the highest level of patient care when they need to get home to their trusted physicians."

"AirMed International is delighted to join with an innovative partner like Wheels Up to provide our excellent air medical transport services to its membership and their flying companions," said AirMed International Executive Vice President & COO Denise M. Treadwell. "As the preferred operator for many of the top hospitals around the world, we are very pleased to be able to provide the best in air medical transport to the large Wheels Up family on their travels 24/7, 365 days a year."

According to Dichter, the AirMed International program is available to Wheels

Up members and listed passengers on any given trip itinerary, who require medical transport within 10 days of their scheduled Wheels Up flight. The service will provide relocation to the hospital of choice for patients in stable condition who become hospitalized more than 150 miles from their home, within the Wheels Up footprint that covers the U.S., parts of the Caribbean, northern Mexico, and south-eastern Canada.

The joint announcement was made at the National Business Aviation Convention and Exhibition held in Las Vegas Nov. 17-19, where Wheels Up is exhibiting at Booth N137 in the Las Vegas Convention Center and 1203 at Henderson Executive Airport.

AirMed International transport specialists will seamlessly execute medical evacuations for Wheels Up members and their guests, serving as the liaison between the attending and receiving physicians while collecting all vital medical data and managing the patient itinerary and dispatch. Rivaling patient care in some of the finest hospitals, AirMed International's fleet of jets are equipped with electrocardiogram monitors, transport and back-up ventilators, infusion pumps, fetal heart monitors, medical gas systems and more for multiple levels of critical care depending on medical issue.

Gama Aviation announces signing of Falcon 2000 business jet at NBAA 2015

Las Vegas, 17th November 2015 Gama Aviation LLC (Stand N2416), an associate business of Gama Aviation PLC, the global aviation services company, has today announced the signing of a management contract for a Falcon 2000. Based at Chicago Midway International Airport; where the company has a new maintenance facility, the 10 seat Falcon 2000 will be used for both private and charter use. The aircraft is Gama Aviation's 95th aircraft under management in the USA.

KC Ihlefeld, VP of Aircraft Management, of Gama Aviation commented: "We are delighted to announce this contract at NBAA and our 95th aircraft under management. We believe we've found a good niche in the Chicago area, providing high value support services that are attractive to individuals and fleet owners alike. When this is married to our wider charter, maintenance and global support capabilities, our offer becomes a very attractive proposition simply because of the scale, depth and breadth of service we can deploy under one brand."

Gama Aviation has identified a strong business aviation market in the State of Illinois. Analysis⁽¹⁾ of industry data reveals that the state has the seventh largest fleet of private jets in the US with 579 aircraft. Some 89 of these were delivered between 2010 and 2014.

Aside of Chicago, the company offers charter aircraft management services and a network of 10 other coast-to-coast facilities as well as a mobile line maintenance⁽²⁾ service across the US. Currently it responds to around 2,500 call-outs from clients in the US every year, has flown over one million miles and driven over 500,000 to support AOG (aircraft on the ground) and line maintenance situations. The Gama Aviation brand has been operating in America since 2008 and offers a range of services from private and fleet management support and charter sales, to maintenance, parts and AOG support. Its management enjoy some 25+ years of experience in a variety of aviation disciplines.

World Travel Awards lands in Morocco ahead of Grand Final 2015

Casablanca, December 11th, 2015 World Travel Awards has arrived in Morocco as final preparations are put in place for the Grand Final 2015.

Over 300 hospitality leaders from around the globe are expected at the red carpet ceremony, which will take place at Mazagan Golf & Beach Resort on Saturday, December 12th.

Guests of honour include Moroccan Minister of Tourism, Dr Lahcen Haddad, Her Excellency Ms Magali Silva Velarde Alvarez, Minister of Foreign Trade & Tourism of Peru, and Maldives Minister of Tourism Mr Moosa Zameer. Preparations are well underway, with Moroccan television celebrity Samid Ghailan confirmed as host for the Gala Ceremony.

A sumptuous banquet will also be served at the ceremony, mixing the best of local cuisine with an international flair, while guests will also be invited on a cultural tour of Morocco with leading performers from across the country welcomed to the stage.

World Travel Awards President and Founder, Mr Graham Cooke said: "This is the final stage of our Grand Tour 2015. We have toured the world during our six regional Gala Ceremonies and now we welcome the elite of international hospitality to Morocco to compete for the global titles.

"It is a pleasure to be welcomed to Morocco for the first time, and I could not think of a more appropriate host for this evening than Mazagan Golf & Beach Resort."

Mazagan Beach & Golf Resort itself was opened in October 2009 following a multi-million dollar investment project initiated by HRH Mohammed VI, the King of Morocco.

The resort, which encompasses 250 hectares of the Atlantic coast, was created by Kerzner International, a leading international developer and operator of destination resorts.

The perfect host for the highlight of the international hospitality calendar. World Travel Awards (WTA) Gala Ceremonies are widely regarded as the best networking opportunities within the travel and tourism industry, attended by government and industry leaders, luminaries, and international print and broadcast media. WTA was established in 1993 to acknowledge, reward and celebrate excellence across all sectors of the tourism industry. Today, the World Travel Awards brand is recognised globally as the ultimate hallmark of quality, with winners setting the benchmark to which all others aspire. Each year WTA covers the globe with a series of regional gala ceremonies staged to recognise and celebrate individual and collective successes within each key geographical region.

VIP flight attendant: a dream job or a Pandora's box?

Being a flight attendant is a dream job for many, but being a VIP flight attendant is close to a pure fantasy even for all those already in the business. They fly less hours, visit the most amazing places on earth and, according to the Daily Mail, earn from 2 to 8 times more than their commercial counterparts. However, great rewards come with unprecedented responsibility and the so called Bond-style life, where the phone ringing in the middle of the night is just another call to mission.

According to wikiHow, becoming a corporate flight attendant is easy. You just have to follow 4 simple steps: have a passport (no a step, really), undergo training, apply for a job and show up for an interview. However, in order to learn how to do this job properly and to understand the executive clients you would be working for, you need to obtain far more knowledge and experience than the one provided during this 4 step program. Whilst scrolling through various VIP attendant job ads, it seems that fluency in languages, training and experience are all equally important for the role. Nevertheless, the truly crucial traits are versatility, knowledge and just sheer devotion of a person.

“Almost everything this industry covers has to be flexible and flight attendants are no exception. The ability to take care of safety and understand your in-flight operational responsibilities is just a tip of the iceberg,” says Vitalij Kapitonov, the CEO of KlasJet. “On top of the commonly known duties, an attendant must maintain awareness of all passengers' food allergies as well as dietary restrictions and preferences. Moreover, the skills of a PA come in handy when you have to arrange, for instance, a frozen butterball turkey, no smaller than 33lbs, in a few-hour notice (real story, by the way). It might come as a surprise, but food is where the attendants' know-how is most valuable for every employer.”

First off, the person must be skilful in culinary arts. After all, not only is he or she responsible for serving Michelin star plates, but also commonly in charge of finding, arranging and transporting food to the take off airport. Such skills as the one of a sommelier are also highly appreciated in the industry. Apart from that, VIP crew must be acquainted with food safety and correct food handling techniques. No travellers, including CEOs, multimillionaires or pop stars, want to get sick because their beluga caviar wasn't opened or stored the right way. So the road to becoming a VIP flight attendant could be basically summed up in three words: learn, learn and learn. And if you work hard enough you are more than likely to get a call from a private jet operator offering you your fantasy spot. And you'll be in for a treat. Having adjusted to the 24 hour notices, you'll meet and chat with the brightest and the best as well as have the chance to literally see the world and your name on a $120 000 yearly paycheck. Without a doubt, aside from the culinary education, industry-specific training also plays a big role in a flight attendant's working in business aviation life. According to the KlasJet executive, almost all of the companies require candidates to have CPR, AED and first aid, in-flight cabin service, food catering, and FACTS Training. However, the main criteria remain the know-how and the ability to be flexible and organized. “In general, companies with extensive experience in the field offer the greatest conditions, however, that means you also have to be the best candidate,” concludes Vitalij Kapitonov, CEO of KlasJet.
